

SCHOLARSHIP LISTINGS for 2016-2017 School Year

All High School Seniors should be looking at the websites of the colleges they apply to. That is where you can get the information you need for the scholarships the colleges offer to incoming freshmen. Every college has a scholarship program. These scholarships range from a few hundred dollars to a full tuition/books/room and board package. Some require an application process, while others are automatic based on G.P.A. and ACT/SAT scores. If you have any questions, contact the university/college or talk to your high school counselor. Qualifying dates also vary. However, many colleges and universities require that a student applies by November 1st to be considered.

Students: Please look over these opportunities carefully. I do check the website and give it a quick once over, but that does not mean every opportunity is a good one. NEVER give out your social security number. Do not pay for the right to apply for a scholarship. Scams look good, that's why they work. If you have any concerns, share them with a counselor immediately.

Note the deadlines on these scholarships. I am adding the newest scholarship opportunities to the beginning of this document, and dropping scholarships as the deadlines pass. A hard copy is available by request. Ask at the counseling office. For the most recent additions to this list, refer to this link regularly.

CATCHING THE DREAM

This is a special program that helps students find scholarships. It is a program originally designed to help Native American students, during their senior year, apply for scholarships. This group gives scholarships and helps find others. There is a website - www.catchingthedream.org They have an article for you to read "How to Find and Win Scholarships".

This group only funds Native American college students. They claim they fully funded 28 students last year and that they will even assist you in writing essays.

If you are Native American, I would definitely check this out. However, be careful. Remember...don't give them any money, don't buy anything and don't share personal information (ss#, etc.) I noticed a lot of information about books to purchase in the materials they sent me. I wouldn't buy any, but perhaps you could check the library to see what books are available there to borrow.

Armed Services

Did you know that each of the armed forces offers a scholarship that will cover all college expenses? If your ACT score is 23 or above, your GPA is 3.3 or above and you are physically fit, you could qualify. The armed services work with several of our local universities to offer this special ROTC program. For more information, see your counselor or favorite recruiter.

StudentScholarships.org sends me scholarship opportunities regularly. Instead of listing each, I am including their web address in this document. See what they have to offer.
